NEWS OF THE DAY.

-Gold closed yesterday at 14 al4. -The New York cotton market closed steady; uplands 19%; sales 3778 bales. -At Liverpool cotton closed steady; uplands

91d; sales 10,000 bales. -Mr. J. Stuart Mill is residing at Avignon, his lungs being too delicate to bear the English climate. -The cholers, which has been ravaging Constantinople, has been checked there, and the ranio is subsiding. -Mr. Michael Phelan, the celebrated billiard player, died in New York on Safurday. He had been in poor health for some time past.

-Louis Napoleon recently planted in the park attached to his English residence a young shoot of weeping willow, from Longwood, St. -The Norfolk, Virginia, Journal is of opinion that the "Tidal Wave," announced for the 6th instant, has only been postponed to Apri! 1st. -President Grant has rented seventeen stalls at the St. Louis Fair Grounds to exhibit some of the choice cattle from his farm near _J. W. S. Browne, founder of the Cincin nati Commercial, who shot and killed his daughter's seducer in Memphis, Tenn., not long ago, has been placed under six thousand dollars ball, and will, it is said, be acquitted when tried before the courts. -A political interview is about to be held at Deauville, in France, between the ex-Queen Isabella and the Duchess of Montpensier. Following this interview the compact of marriage between the two younger branches of the Spanish Bourbons-the Prince of the Asturias and the daughter of the Puke de Montpensier Als to be signed. Many distinguished per sonages have recently gone to Deauville to confer with the ex-Queen on the subject.

-A dispatch dated Raleigh, N. C., 6th instant, to the Washington Chronicle, says: "Hon. Josiah Turner, Jr., editor of the Sentinel of this city, was arrested here to-day, charged with a conspiracy to injure the United States marshal on account of the lawful discharge of the duties of his office. He had a the great city of the West. What is now hearing before United States Commissioner Shaffer, and was held to bail in the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars for his appearance at the November term of court."

-Information has been received indicating that the Mormons have considered a fearful plan of retaliation towards the government for the course which has been pursued in Utah against polygamy by the Federal judicial authorities. It is nothing less than an effort to foment an Indian war from Arizona to the Northern bounds of Dakota, to destroy the overland railroads and devastate the whole Western frontier. Additional troops have been ordered to Utah, and as the government is forewarned in time, any such scheme of warfare may be nipped in the inception. nere does not appear to be any information that any aggressive movements have been entered upon, nor that the Mormons are prepared to precipitate hostilicies just now; but that they have this plan in contemplation there seems to be no doubt. The New York Journal of Commerce anticipates an unexampled activity in German immigration and trade to the United States. It mentions six lines of German steamers to ply to the port of New York. New enterprises of this steamer interest are the line between Bremen and New Orleans, via Havre, established by the North German Lloyd, and the line from Hamburg to New Orleans, via Fantander, Spain, and Havana, Cuba, established by the Hamburg American Steam Packet Company. It is pointed out that the new Stettin line, touching at ports of Norway and Denmark, is likely to quicken trade with Russia, to which it now affords the best route. In factthe Journal states that Colonel Gorloff, the Russian government agent in New York, is now sending out by this line large quantities of American-made arms. -A Washington letter, describing President Grant's reception on Saturday, says: "When the public were received, a delegation from South Carolins, half white and half colored appeared, asking, in the name of the Republican State efficials and the party, that United States Marshal Johnson (a son of Hon. Reverdy Johnson) be removed, on the ground that he was not in harmony with the party. and was in effect a Democrat. The President took the demand under advisement. He displaced Mr. Johnson last summer, but on the recommendation of Attorney-General Akerman that he w s a good Republican and an efficient officer, reinstated him. Among those who called to pay their respects to the President was a delegation from the Baltimore Episcopal Convention, headed by the Lord

Bishop of Litchfield, England." -Although the London papers evidently know nothing about it, the annual congress of the International Society has just concluded a four days' secret session in that city. Very voluminous and carefully prepared reports of the numerical, financial and social strength of the association in their respective countries have been brought by the delegates from Italy, Spain, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Switzerland and France. The principal object of the congress is to arrange for future movements on the continent, and for this purpose a complete scheme for a centralized organization has been perfected. They also desire to extend the society, create new branches, attract back those which have from time to time seceded, and propagate their doctrines among the working classes throughout the world. A correspondent who interviewed a number of delegates representing man different nationalities, reports them as bearing witness to a great advance in popular i leas in their respective countries. They do not believe in either Bradlaugh or Odger, and one very intelligent Belgian called the former "a king o'shreds and patches, and a useless puppet," and the latter a snivelling idiot." Evidently, the different branches of the European Liberals do not

is a justice of the peace. Her husband, in her | 102,032 barrels. absence at the office, has had to manage the domestic affairs of his once happy home, and on one occasion, the baby becoming unusually but fifty miles of railroad. Five days were turbulent, he sought reluge in the bowl. Some malicious wags discovered him in a considerably elevated condition, and bearing him off to his wife's office, demanded a warrant for his arrest. After a moment's hesitation between wifely and judicial feeling, she granted the demand, and proceeded to try her lord and master for breach of the peace. Mr Morris's nead being not particularly clear, he failed to comprehend the situation, and accordingly addressed the court in his usual familiar style. Being promptly checked by the officer in charge, his anger was aroused, and with some earnestness and a good deal of profanity he informed that functionary that he was a fool, and that the woman was his wife Esther, also volunteering the statement that everybody in the vicinity was drunk. The indignant justice or dered her refractory liege to be locked up, wereupon he appealed to her maternal nature, by referring in touching language to the blatant condition of her offspring, and the almost absolute dearth of soothing syrup; but the wretched m n was nevertheless marched off to the dungeon, confinement wherein were doubtless a sweet boon compared with the Caudle lecture he received the next night.

Stung by our complete and repeated exposures of its raw-head-and-bloody-bones stories, the Columbia Union, in a paroxysm of impotent rage, hurls the anathema of disloyalty at THE CHARLESTON NEWS, and breatens us with the dire pains and penalties of the Ku-Klux Act. Our inventive contemporary should keep cool. It must know that all the combined powers of a Judge Bond, a Governor Scott and a President Grant, great as these may be, cannot purge its columns of the disgrace of systematic and law-abiding people. Nor is the time yet come when the bayonet is the censor of honest journalism. If ever, and anywhere, a free and outspoken press was a great public necessity, South Carolina is the place, and this is the time. A press that can neither be bullied nor bribed is the last remaining check upon the otherwise unbridled rascality of our rulers. The Union is wasting its loyal "warnings." If its falsifications were but half as harmless as its threats, we should never have been at the trouble of exposing

The Doomed City.

The City of Chicago, which the conflagragration of Sunday and Monday has laid in United States at the disposal of the sufruins, was cited, all the world over, as an example of what could be accomplished by American energy and skill, working under favorable natural conditions. In a quarter of a century, it rose from a small trading post to the first rank among the cities of the Union. Ten years ago a man was still living to whom was allotted, for services in the Black Hawk Indian War, a tract of land of small value, which is now ir the centre of worth tens of millions, was sold by the origloal owner for a song.

The city was laid out in rectangular blocks, nearly all the streets being eighty feet wide. It extended to the westward about seven miles, and to the north and west about ten miles. As an instance of the vigprous commercial character of the people, it may be mentioned that between 1855 and and 1865 the entire business portion of the city was raised from four to eight feet above its former level, so as to facilitate drainage and render it possible to have dry cellars for storehouses and the like. This cost many million dollars. Huge buildings were lifted up to the new level, while their occupants ate, drank and made merry without pause or inconvenience. The business quarters were built chiefly of brick, but the newest blocks were of Athens marble, which is found near the city, and is highly prized all over the West. The most prominent buildings were the Courthouse, the Chamber of Commerce (costing nearly half a million,) the First and Second Presbyterian Church, Trinity Church, the Crosby Opera House, the Tremont House. Thousands of other buildings were striking in appearance, although, it may be, wanting the settled solidity of appearance which characterizes older cities. Iron was lavishly used for building purposes, and the Mansard roof was in general use. No city in the Union has increased in population so rapidly as Chicago. The an

In forty years Chicago increased in population from 70 to 298,077. No wonder that it was confessedly the commercial metropolis of the Northwest. It was the largest grain market in the world. In 1838 the first shipment of wheat was made, consisting of 78 bushels. Less than thirty years afterwardin 1864-the receipts of flour and grain were as follows: 1,170,274 barrels of flour, 10,-888,436 bushels of wheat, 13,197,340 bushels of corn, 16,365,460 bushels of oats, 1,007,776 bushels of rye, and 893,000 bushels of barley-in all equal to forty-eight million bushels of grain. In 1866-67 the shipment of flour was 2,179,785 barrels, against 111 .-627 barrels in 1854. In 1868 the shipment of wheat was 10,050,451 bushels and of corn 21.880,682 bushels. The receipts of wheat were 1,385,177 bushels in 1854, and in 1861 were 17,781,459 bushels. Chicago was the greatest lumber market in the United States. The receipts of lumber in 1847 were 32,118,225 feet, in 1864 they were 501,592,406 feet, and in 1868 they were 882,661,770 feet. This last year's lumber would make a line 167,170 miles long, or would put a seven-fold belt of lumber around this world of ours.

Chicago was the largest beef-packing and pork-packing point in the United States. In 1852 there were packed 21,863 beeves, and in 1865 there were packed 92,459. The number of hogs packed increased from 22,036 in 1851-2 to 796,225 in 1867-8. In 1858 only 416,225 live hogs were received, but in 1867-8 the number was 1,617,851. Besides its trade in lumber, grain and pro-The practical working of the wo nan suffrate movement has recently had a striking ex seeds, salt and hides. Nor was the whiskey

In 1848 there was no railway leading to or from Chicago, and the whole State had then quick time, in the summer, between New York and Chicago. The city is now the terminus of thirty-two railroad lines. It had seven daily newspapers and twenty-one chartered banks, and there are twenty-nine private banking firms.

Mr. Charles Randolph, secretary of the Board of Trade, in his annual report of the trade and commerce of Chicago for the year ending December 31, 1870, gives the following statistics: Elevator capacity, 11,580,000 bushels. Corn received during the year, 20, 189,774 bushels; wheat received, 17,394,409 bushels; head of hogs received, 1,953,372; head of cattle received, 532,964; 12,433 vessels cleared during the year with a tonnage of 2,983,942. The value of taxable property returned was $275,986,550. The Bu reau of Statistics, at Washington, gives 5343 as the total number of vessels on the northern lakes, with an aggregate tonnage of 680,436.78. The total amount of lumber received during the year 1870 was 1,150,-000,000 feet. The wholesale sales of Chicago, which showed a total of $400,000,000 in 1869, were larger in 1870 by $6.25 per $1000, or § per cent., the total being $402,500,000, though prices averaged 12 to 15 per cent. lower, chiefly in sympathy with the decline in the gold premium. According to the census returns of 1870, it had 1149 manufacturing establishments, employing 20,156 operatives and representing a capital of $27,948,501. The city was provided with water from the lake; but, owing to the fact that the water close to the shore was polluted by the filth which ran out of the river, a tunnel was cut under the bed of the lake, extending two miles from the shore, so as to supply the and malicious misrepresentation of a brave city with pure water. This tunnel was one of the greatest pieces of engineering known in the West. Chicago had seventeen public schools and a high school. The Board of Trade numbered eighteen hundred members. We do not attempt to account for the origin of the Chicago fire, or for the rapidity with which it spread over the city. Before long, we may expect to learn why a city, traversed by a river and a canal, situated upon an inland sea and supplied with an ample fire department, has fallen so easy a prey to the flames. We content ourselves now with expressing our gratification at the manner in which the disastrous intelligence was received, and at the prompt action of President Grant in placing the stores of the
